WOSU Public Media Student Fellowship

Last year, with private philanthropic support, WOSU Public Media launched its Student Fellowship program. The purpose of the Fellowship is to provide to Ohio State University students the opportunity to have a professional experience at an award-winning public media organization. Students work closely with WOSU staff, and while they are assigned to a specific department, they’re given special projects to be able to collaborate with colleagues across different divisions.

Through an extensive selection process, students are awarded the Fellowship and this year’s recipient, Deepti Hossain, is embedded in the Marketing Communications department. Deepti is a senior at Ohio State majoring in Journalism and Strategic Communication and minoring in Women’s, Gender and Sexuality Studies. She has been an intern with a local publication, as well as OSU’s Office of Advancement and is a reporter for the student paper, The Lantern. An advocate for social change and the rights of women, she co-founded ‘Fighting Pretty at OSU’, the first chapter of a national non-profit that brings beauty packages to students at OSU battling cancer.

In just the first few months of her Fellowship, Deepti has worked on a production of Columbus on the Record, developed social media posts, written promotional copy, conducted research on the current landscape in digital media, and created a blog post for Columbus Neighborhoods. WOSU is delighted to have Deepti as part of our public broadcasting team!

Courtney Gilbert, awarded the Student Fellowship in 2016-17, re-applied to the program and is now working as a Production Assistant with All Sides with Ann Fisher on 89.7 NPR News.

10am  Intelligence Squared Debate
Do Liberals Hold the Moral High Ground?

Do conservative or liberal philosophies lead to more just outcomes? Opposing moral philosophies have long fueled debate about America’s policy goals and national identity. For conservatives, morality is grounded in ideals such as liberty, patriotism, a respect for order and authority and the sanctity of religious and moral tradition. Liberals place moral emphasis on caring for the poor and marginalized; on fairness in redressing both historic wrongs and current inequities, and on generosity extending beyond the bounds of nations or cultures.

In today’s divisive political arena, which side best embodies the nation’s most cherished virtues? Morally speaking, is the left right? Former DNC chair Howard Dean and New York Times Columnist David Brooks try to settle the issue in the lively forum.

11am  Intelligence Squared Debate
Should College Athletes Be Paid?

Before you sit down to watch New Year’s Day college football games, hear two sides of the debate over college athlete compensation. College sports is a big money business, with football and basketball programs generating tens of millions of dollars every year. While coaches in Division I programs earn seven figure salaries, athletes cannot share in the profits. Is it time to rewrite the rules in college sports and allow athletes their fair share? Or would paying them above their scholarships spoil the sport?

New York Times columnist Joe Nocera and economist Andy Schwarz argue for paying college athletes; USA Today sports columnist Christine Brennan and All-American basketball player Len Elmore argue against it.
Holiday Specials 2017
As this year draws to a close, the music of Hanukkah and Christmas reminds so many of us of our treasured holiday traditions. We have a full slate of special programs scheduled at Classical 101, in addition to holiday editions of our regular shows.

DEC. 14 Host Mindy Ratner brings you “Candles Burning Brightly,” exploring the traditions of Hanukkah, 8pm (repeats December 17 at 4pm)

DEC. 17 Christopher Purdy features Handel’s Messiah on Musica Sacra, 8pm

DEC. 24 A Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols, live from King’s College Cambridge, 10am – noon.

The gift of music is always welcome, so each of our local hosts has produced a special hour for our listeners. Please enjoy our Christmas gifts to you!

– On Christmas Eve, December 24 at 7pm, enjoy “Christmas with Christopher” just before Musica Sacra’s “A Columbus Christmas” with Christopher Purdy.

– Classical 101’s Program Director and Saturday morning host Cheryl Dring recaptures those special stolen moments of quiet during the holiday hubbub with “The Peace of the Season” Christmas morning at 7am.

– Boyce Lancaster puts some delightful musical arrangements under the tree for you with “Musical Christmas Gifts” Christmas morning at 8am.

– Always a fan of a double entendre, Jennifer Hambrick turns the festive up a notch with her “Holiday Happy Hour”, Christmas day at 10am.

– John Rittmeyer takes you on a trip to the British Isles for “An English Pastorale”, demonstrating that it’s possible to evoke the spirit of Christmas without playing all Christmas music! Christmas day at 2pm.

A longtime voice on the Classical 101 airwaves, afternoon host John Rittmeyer will be retiring at the end of 2017. He’s been your weekday afternoon host for more than 10 years and the host of Fretworks and Symphony at 7. Jennifer Hambrick sat down with John recently to discuss his time at WOSU and his future plans. Check it out on our blog at wosu.org/classical101 and leave your best wishes for John in the comments section!
