Endeavour on Masterpiece: Season 5
Starts Sunday, June 24 at 9pm

Daniel Tiger’s Neighborhood Be My Neighbor Day

Daniel Tiger’s adventures in growing up are a ritual shared by thousands of kids who visit him, daily, on TV. In turn, Daniel Tiger visits local neighborhoods at Be My Neighbor Day celebrations around the country, spreading the message of giving and sharing to children and families.

Daniel Tiger is coming to a Columbus neighborhood on Saturday, June 23. WOSU Public Media, PNC, and Community Development for All People (CD4AP) are hosting a Party at the Plaza at the south side that afternoon to celebrate Be My Neighbor Day. The community will gather at the Fresh Market for the festivities.

The Fresh Market at Parsons Avenue offers exactly what its name says—delicious farm-fresh produce. It distributes as much as 20,000 pounds of fresh produce a week to low-income individuals and families. On Be My Neighbor Day, the Market will be the object of attention and appreciation of neighbors and friends. Volunteers will plant a variety of herbs to create a raised-bed garden for the Fresh Market. A group of teens from Circleville dedicated time and effort to the cause. The Ignite Youth Group of the First Baptist Church—a team of 20 6th to 12th grade students—assembled wooden planters for the garden.

Party at the Plaza is a quarterly event hosted by CD4AP to welcome new neighbors and remind long-time residents of the hospitality and friendliness of their neighborhood. The party on June 23 imbibes the spirit of Party in the Plaza to celebrate Be My Neighbor Day—with food, musical performances by the All People Band and other fun-filled activities highlighted by the appearance of Daniel Tiger and Katerina Kittycat.

PNC Bank’s Grow Up Great team of volunteers will be on hand with resources to boost early learning—that includes Daniel Tiger books and Neighborhood keepsakes.
All programs are subject to change.

Sunday Mornings – A Time To Talk It Out And Break Down Complex Issues

Late Sunday morning is a special time. By 10am, you’ve likely read the Sunday paper, scanned your social media feed, gone to church, and eaten breakfast. As you digest all that, 89.7 NPR News provides two programs to help you make sense of a chaotic and complex world.

It’s Been A Minute
It’s Been A Minute (10am) is another way of saying, “Let’s catch up.” Host Sam Sanders says, “Sometimes you just need to talk it out,” and that’s what he and his guests do each week. The show is a casual space for news junkies trying to process the pace of current events. Sam also spends time with actors, musicians, and comedians, giving you a chance to really get to know them. Sam’s empathetic curiosity and slightly irreverent view of the world provides much-needed breathing space to cope with the avalanche of news.

Freakonomics Radio
Freakonomics Radio (11am) takes extremely complex topics (one might call them boring), and turns them into compelling stories. Host Stephen Dubner, co-author of the Freakonomics books, dissects and examines issues like the effectiveness of the Trump tax cuts – are they awesome or terrible? The show recently examined what Uber can teach us about the gender pay gap and gave us an “egghead’s guide” to the Super Bowl.

Make It’s Been a Minute with Sam Sanders and Freakonomics Radio part of your late Sunday morning routine.

June Highlights

Columbus Symphony

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra’s broadcast season wraps up this month with four amazing concerts! On June 3 you’ll hear Brahms’ sublime A German Requiem with soloists Abigail Rethwisch and Jarrett Ott. Jennifer Koh’s performance of the Sibelius Violin Concerto shares the program with the Berlioz Symphonie Fantastique on June 10. Simone Dinnerstein and the Columbus Symphony Women’s Chorus are both featured in a program of Mozart and Debussy on June 17. And the season finale on June 24 showcases the great violinist Joshua Bell in the Bruch Violin Concerto, along with Margaret Brouwer’s Pulse and the Brahms Symphony No. 4. Be listening Sunday afternoons at 1pm.

Front Row Center

Classical 101’s newest program offering has a star-studded lineup for the month of June. Be listening Friday nights at 7pm for Jonas Kaufmann singing Strauss, selections from Bellini’s Il Pirata featuring Maria Callas, George London as Boris Godunov, Schumann’s Dichterliebe with Fritz Wunderlich, and recent releases from mezzos Cecilia Bartoli and Magdalena Kozena.

The American Sound

This month, The American Sound brings all the buzz and hum of summer. It wouldn’t be summer without the circus, and Stravinsky’s Circus Polka – inspired by an American circus icon – brings the dancing elephants to you in style. Enjoy Dan Locklair’s Symphony of Seasons in the transition between spring and summer, and take a trip down the Mighty Mississippi with Michael Daugherty’s Reflections on the Mississippi, featuring a performance by a tuba soloist with Columbus ties. These are just a few of the June highlights on The American Sound. Hear it Saturdays at 6pm, repeated Tuesday nights at 7pm.
