Tech Savvy WOSU Members Surveyed

Over 700 of our members recently took a rather lengthy independent survey about media usage.* Among the key takeaways:

- Nine of ten of us still listen regularly to the radio, but a quarter of our WOSU listeners hear us through different devices: our WOSU app, a smart speaker, or computer.
- Smart speakers are hot: 20 percent of our listeners own one and overall use increased 66 percent in 2018.
- A third of our local respondents listen to a podcast weekly. (WOSU podcasts include Snollygoster and Rivet)
- In the world of social media, our members use Facebook the most (53%), but Instagram is coming on strong.
- Netflix is the most popular video service, but look out for a surging Amazon.

These surveys help us understand where our audience is going for their news and entertainment. We also asked some qualitative questions including why you listen to WOSU 89.7. The number one answer was because our news was “more credible and objective.” Others topping the list: “I enjoy learning new things,” “I get a deeper news perspective,” and WOSU provides “balanced perspectives.” Thanks to those who spent the time to be part of this important survey. Keep listening and watching. We’ll be back in a few years to ask again!

*Survey results gathered in 2018 as part of the Public Radio Tech Survey by Jacobs Media.

Weekend Afternoon – A Thoughtful Break from the News

Rapidly changing events provide the energy a newsroom needs to keep rolling. We at WOSU love chasing stories, analyzing the latest of Washington, but even journalists and news junkies need a break.

That’s where weekend afternoons on 89.7 NPR News provide relief. Saturday and Sunday afternoons give 89.7 NPR News listeners a chance to take a breath, reflect on a single topic, share life experiences, laugh, and even cry. If you have not checked out our weekend line-up lately, here’s a taste:

This American Life – Saturdays at 1pm
Ira Glass and his team are journalists, but entertaining journalists. Each week they pick a theme and present stories on that theme complete with compelling people, funny moments and surprising plot twists.

The Moth Radio Hour – Saturdays at 2pm
The Moth features true stories told live. Each week’s program showcases average people telling extraordinary stories in front of a live audience, creating a wonderfully unique and intimate experience. Moth stories will keep you in your car at the home center parking lot.

Snap Judgment – Saturdays at 3pm
Host Glynn Washington also presents compelling personal stories – but with a beat. The result is cinematic radio with real drama. Do. Not. Miss. It.

Planet Money/How I Built This – Sundays at 2pm
The NPR combo focuses on business and entrepreneurship. Planet Money explains serious economic issues with playful storytelling. How I Built This host Guy Raz and his famous guests trace the challenging journeys of some of the world’s most successful innovators.

Freakonomics Radio – Sundays at 3pm
Host Stephen Dubner, co-author of the bestselling Freakonomics book series, ferrets out connections between seemingly unrelated things. Using the tools of economics, the show explores the riddles of everyday life.

News fatigue is real, but we know 89.7 NPR News listeners never stop wanting to know more about the world around them; they want to share the experiences of others. Saturday and Sunday afternoon programs fill that need for thoughtful escape. Besides, football season is over, what else you going to do?
The American Sound
Saturdays at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm

This month The American Sound showcases music by African-American composers, including Florence Price, George Walker, Adolphus Hailstork and William Dawson, in a celebration of Black History Month. Also catch gorgeous works for string orchestra by George Chadwick and Henry Gilbert and American masterworks like Gershwin’s An American in Paris and Bernstein’s Divertimento for Orchestra. And escape the February blahs each week when our “Destination Vacation” series whisks you away to blue skies and warm weather with music inspired by Hawai’i, Guam, Florida and California. Join host Jennifer Hambrick Saturday evenings at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm.

Exploring Music
Weeknights at 6pm

And Bill McGlaughlin spends two weeks celebrating the works of African-American composers on Exploring Music. Beginning February 4th Portraits in Black, Brown and Beige, named in honor of Duke Ellington’s jazz symphony, explores 400 years of composers and performers, starting with musical traditions of the first Africans to arrive on this continent. You’ll also hear art songs, symphonies, and traditional spirituals that have become a large part of our American musical identity. Week two starts February 11 and includes works by Anthony Davis and Jeffrey Mumford. The series wraps up with poetry by Langston Hughes and music from Louis Armstrong, Miles Davis, and Michael Jackson!

Sunday Baroque
Saturdays at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm

“Love is friendship set to music” goes one saying. In anticipation of Valentine’s Day, on February 10th Sunday Baroque will feature performances by some noteworthy musical friendships that blossomed into love. They include flutist Gwyn Roberts and lutenist Richard Stone who met at a gig, and went on to marry and form the period instrument group Tempesta di Mare.

Symphony Showcase
Saturdays at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm

Also, this month on Symphony Showcase, host Kent explores symphonies by Nordic composers and for the week of February 18th on Exploring Music, Bill McGlaughlin examines the role of music critics and composers who were also critics. As Sibelius said, ‘They never built a statue for a music critic.’
