WOSU Public Media breaks ground on new headquarters!
Transforming Public Media and Our Community: New WOSU Headquarters

On April 11, WOSU Public Media broke ground on its new five-floor, 52,000-square-foot building at 14th Ave & Pearl Alley as part of Campus Partners’ 15+HIGH project. Flexibly designed to change as media continues to evolve, with plenty of open spaces for creativity and knowledge-sharing, the new headquarters will be completed by early 2021.

The facility will enable WOSU to expand and enhance programming for people like you – among the more than two million citizens we reach through television, radio, digital and WOSU Classroom services.

We will be forging a new path for public media by opening our doors to amazing new studios, but also a creative makerspace and community space that will greatly expand our engagement across this diverse community.

– Tom Rieland, General Manager, WOSU Public Media

For the first time, WOSU will be able to bring together our award-winning producers, journalists, digital media experts and other creative staff to spark new ideas and approaches to producing local news, arts and cultural content.

Now more than ever, public media is essential.

For almost a century, WOSU has engaged, informed and inspired the people of central Ohio. Now, we need your support to continue to be accessible, expand our services and enrich our programming.

To learn more or to discuss recognition opportunities, contact the WOSU Public Media Office of Advancement at campaign@wosu.org or 614.292.6430.

Expanding Our Ability to Serve

Now more than ever, our community needs a place to convene, connect and create.

More than just a structure, this space will:
• Foster public engagement through experiential activities
• Encourage students and the broader community to create and share their own stories in a new makerspace
• Provide collaborative public space to discuss the primary issues facing our community and the world

The new facility will feature an open 2,200-square foot community studio, an expanded newsroom, broadcast studios, a performance studio and a state-of-the art media learning lab. Experiential activities will grow tremendously as the new headquarters will be home to more than 200 community events each year.

Summer TV Programming

WOSU TV is flying high this summer with a great line-up of programs commemorating historic events from 1969, and the return of two favorite detectives on Masterpiece.

__________ June

We’ll kick off in June with three unique river journeys. Travel down The Nile, The Amazon and The Mississippi rivers on Rivers of Life.

__________ July

July begins Summer of Space, celebrating of the 50th anniversary of the moon landing. “This exceptional collection of special programs will give viewers a historical understanding of the Apollo 11 moon landing ...as well as exploring the distant planets and deep mysteries of space that are well beyond human grasps,” says Perry Simon, PBS’ Chief Programming Executive.

American Experience’s six-hour film Chasing the Moon dives into the story of the space race, from its earliest beginnings to the monumental achievement of the first lunar landing in 1969.

NOVA’s Back to the Moon profiles the next generation of engineers working to take man back to the moon and beyond. And NOVA: The Planets, five-part series, is an up-close look at some faraway worlds, including the dark side of Pluto.

__________ August

August marks the 50th anniversary of Woodstock and American Experience commemorates the historic three-day concert on Woodstock: Three Days that Defined a Generation. “Our film turns the cameras around, into the audience,” said American Experience executive producer Mark Samels, “Woodstock expands our understanding of the event as not only an unparalleled musical milestone, but a once-in-a-century cultural phenomena.”

Masterpiece premières new seasons of Endeavour and Grantchester. Endeavour deals with the tragic, still unresolved, murder of DC George Fancy. Grantchester says good-bye to Sidney Chambers and hello to the new vicar, the Reverend Will Davenport.

"Wunderkinder" on Exploring Music

As the school year is drawing to a close, host Bill McGlaughlin turns his thoughts to youth. Musical prodigies, that is. For two weeks, Exploring Music will consider “Wunderkinder” — blazing talents whose remarkable lives overflowed with natural gifts from a young age. Audiences couldn’t get enough of them!

Mozart and Mendelssohn were famous prodigies, and you’ll hear their music played by some of today’s whiz kids. Julia Fischer plays Paganini and violinist Julian Sitkovetsky performs with his mother, pianist Bella Davidovich. There’s also lots of Chopin played by some of the great prodigy pianists of our time — Maurizio Pollini, Garrick Ohlsson and Frederic Chiu. And that’s just the first week.

Listen weeknights at 6pm, starting May 6.

Part II of “Wunderkinder” features more musical prodigies and the works they wrote. It’s easy to forget that some of the pieces these musicians are best remembered for were written while they were still teens. As a special treat, you’ll get to hear violinists showing off while playing Rimsky-Korsakov’s Flight of the Bumblebee! The entire first and second violin sections of the Philadelphia orchestra tackle that virtuoso showpiece.

Hear what all the fuss is about, weeknights at 6pm, starting May 13.

Special Series: Can We Talk About Mental Illness?

When we complain about a cough, or mention a child’s tummy ache, most of us have no problem talking about it. We share similar experiences, offer antidotes, suggest preventive measures. We’re not nearly as open to discussing mental illness. When was the last time you talked about depression or anxiety in the break room?

A special series in May on 89.7 NPR News aims to open up those conversations. In observance of Mental Health Awareness Month, WOSU will air Can We Talk – a four-part miniseries about subjects that are hard to discuss. Hosted by Harvard-trained psychiatrist Dr. Anne Hallward, each show will explore the intersection of mental health and social change. Through compelling stories and expert guidance, the series will give listeners the tools to have challenging conversations.

May 5 - Apologies discusses the cultural pressure to forgive as a woman confronts the man who sexually assaulted her.

May 12 - In Asking For Help, a military veteran hides his homelessness from his elderly parents and a woman navigates her son’s opiate addiction and confronts the difference between love and help.

May 19 - Loneliness examines the health tolls of loneliness and tells the story of how a man transformed his suicidal depression by becoming a psychiatric peer counselor.

May 26 - In Talking to White Kids About Race & Racism, two teenagers – one Dominican, the other white, discuss what white teens need to know to be good allies.

Listen for Can We Talk Sundays in May at 10am on 89.7 NPR News.
