Endeavour on Masterpiece, Season Seven

Starts Sunday, August 9 at 9pm

Across its many years, the 1970s proved the most challenging financial time in WOSU’s history. Deep university cuts, for instance, forced WOSU radio and TV to go off the air early evenings and weekends to save on utility and personnel costs.

The Friends of WOSU Board, chartered in 1973, quickly joined with staff to solicit support for the first time from the general public. A “Friends-a-Thon” raised $24,000 in two days. Everyone was surprised and grateful for the community’s outpouring of support for public broadcasting. One contributor described their “utter frenzy” at the thought of losing WOSU programming.

The support of the over 29,000 members like you continues to provide the national and local programming and services you cherish.

Today, the volunteer Friends of WOSU Board plays a critical role well beyond fundraising. The board reviews our strategic plan and programming, advises on major initiatives, serves as advocates to our government officials and leaders at Ohio State, and provides an important community lens to all we do.

A highly functioning board is a key to WOSU’s success, so I’m very pleased to announce new leadership to the WOSU Public Media Friends of WOSU Board: Kyle Anderson, director of marketing & communication at State Auto takes over as president; Mac Joseph, senior VP of marketing at Paul Werth is vice president; and Betsy Pandora, executive director of the Short North Alliance is our new secretary/treasurer.

We’ve also recruited members who bring important new community experiences and perspectives to the organization: Courtnee Carrigan is the CEO and executive trainer at Raising the Bar Performance Group; Erin Davis Shedd is the system vice president & associate general counsel of OhioHealth; Erik Farley is the dean of student leadership and community engagement at Denison University; and Julie Keckstein is the vice president and senior banking advisor at PNC Wealth Management. Bill Schiffman, principal of Wealth Management, LLC returns to the board.

I am so grateful to our new leadership and members and the entire Friends of WOSU Board for volunteering to assist WOSU during this incredible time of change and opportunity. Thank you!

Stay Well,

Tom Rieland, General Manager
An Extraordinary Year in Digital

This year has been like no other in recent history. The extraordinary circumstances over the last few months have brought a historic increase in usage on WOSU’s digital platforms.

WOSU’s online growth is largely due to building a larger following for our news coverage. News stories from July 2019 to June 2020 – which included reports on the impeachment trial, COVID-19 pandemic, protests over racial injustice and many other stories – contributed to 5.1 million unique users to wosu.org. A year over year increase of 2 million unique users over that time span.

For the past three years, we have been building an audience for news on our website and, as these recent events unfolded, this audience as well as many more readers finding us through search engines and social media turned to WOSU for the latest developments.

For the 2020 calendar year, we are more than 81% toward eclipsing last year’s total pageviews on our website. And we still have a presidential election to cover.

Keeping You Informed

We have refined our approach to help keep you informed on the latest news over the last six months.

- Breaking news alerts are sent out through the WOSU Public Media mobile app. If you haven’t done so already, download our app and enable notifications to ensure you don’t miss a headline.
- We are also using Instagram to tell stories on this visual medium through the lenses of our reporters and videographers.
- We continue to livestream Ohio Gov. Mike DeWine’s coronavirus press conferences on 89.7 NPR News and the mobile app.

Keeping You Entertained

As the coronavirus kept everyone home over the past few months, usage of WOSU Passport has seen a big uptick. Passport is the members-only benefit that gives access to a video library with favorite PBS and WOSU shows available on-demand. And through it all, Classical 101 has remained your musical companion producing signature local shows, online Quarantine Classics and reporting about the effects of COVID-19 on the local arts and music scene.

Continue to turn to WOSU Public Media on the radio, smart speaker, mobile app or website. However you prefer to access, WOSU will continue to provide the latest on the coronavirus, the 2020 election and more.

Daniel Tiger’s Neighborhood – Won’t You Sing Along
Monday, 8/17 at 10am on WOSU TV, all week on WOSU Kids beginning Monday, 8/17

When Daniel learns he can’t gather with all of his neighbors at the Neighborhood Carnival this year, it leads to a lot of big feelings and questions, including what to do when he misses the people he loves, how to keep himself and others healthy, and how to find ways to enjoy the extra time at home with his family.

Elinor Wonders Why
Coming to WOSU TV and WOSU Kids on September 7

Meet Elinor and her friends Ari, a funny and imaginative bat, and Olive, a perceptive and warm elephant. As they explore Animal Town, they will meet all kinds of interesting, funny and quirky characters.

Pandemic Shutdown Gives Us a Glimpse at Radio’s Future

Don’t discount the power of Americans’ short attention span. Despite predictions that the suddenly universal work-from-home movement will become the permanent New Normal, in all likelihood we Americans will forget. We will return to the office, get in our vehicles, get stuck in traffic and turn on the car radio. So, we at WOSU are realistically optimistic the in-car listeners we and other stations have lost during the pandemic will return once the crisis passes. However, the pandemic has shown that we broadcasters must be prepared for the other New Normal coming someday – the one where digital listening and on-demand listening surpass our over-the-air broadcast. While our drive-time listening has decreased during the shutdown, our digital usage has exploded. More and more people are listening to Morning Edition and All Sides with Ann Fisher on wosu.org, through the WOSU Public Media mobile app and through their smart speakers. In the past year, 89.7 NPR News’ already strong streaming audience increased by 66%. We expect over-the-air listening will return to pre-pandemic levels, but the shutdown has given us a valuable sneak preview of our future.

We at WOSU must continue to evolve. The shutdown has dramatically illustrated how we no longer compete just with other radio stations for your time. We compete with streaming audio services, tens of thousands of podcasts, YouTube, CNN, Netflix and TikTok. Our news and local programming must be compelling enough to prompt you to ask Alexa to “Play WOSU!” Our technology infrastructure must continue to be as easy to use as any smart TV or social media site. We are humbled that our most loyal listeners have stuck with us. You may not be listening to 89.7 during your half-hour commutes to and from work, but you still listen every day, many times a day and on all kinds of devices. You have been the backbone of support for WOSU Public Media for nearly a century, and we’ll continue to work hard to satisfy you for the next century – wherever you work, however you listen.

An Investment in Technology

In June, Classical 101 flipped the switch on a new transmitter for its 24-hour classical station in Columbus. The WOSA transmitter, broadcasting on 101.1 FM, was the oldest transmitter in WOSU Public Media’s fleet of radio transmitters scattered across Central Ohio.

“The replacement of the transmitter and antenna on Classical 101 was long overdue and had been planned for years since we acquired the station a decade ago,” said Tom Rieland WOSU Public Media general manager. “Finally, we were able to gather the resources to get it done. We believe the new technology will improve reception to some of our listeners in the Columbus area. We’re also excited to provide Classical 101 in digital, which means if you have an HD radio at home or in your car, the sound quality will be clear as a bell.”

This new antenna and transmitter represent a significant investment in the future of Classical 101 at WOSU Public Media. Your support has been powerful in sustaining this service.

Programming Highlights

Every August, Twinsburg, Ohio celebrates a Twins Day Festival. On August 9, Sunday Baroque will also celebrate twins, including performances by identical twin guitarist brothers and twin piano-playing sisters. Be listening Sundays from 6am - 10am.

It’s a Dvorak Festival on Symphony Showcase this month. Join host Kent Teeters for Dvorak symphonies and select favorite shorter orchestral works, played by some of the world’s finest orchestras. Sundays at 6pm and Thursdays at 7pm.

The American Sound is full of flair and summer fun, including the high-energy ‘Hootenanny’ of jazz legend Wynton Marsalis’ Violin Concerto, William Schuman’s New England Triptych on tunes by William Billings and Tom Vignieri’s There Will Come Soft Rains, a work for chorus and orchestra composed specially for Columbus. Join host Jennifer Hambrick for The American Sound, Saturdays at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm.
