WOSU's New Headquarters
Opens to the Public Saturday, October 2
details on page 3
Leading WOSU Public Media for the past 19 years has easily been the best prize of my life. This summer I announced my retirement as general manager at the end of the year. A national search firm has been hired by Ohio State and university and community leaders including representatives of the staff and Friends of WOSU Board make up a search committee who will advise on a choice soon.

It's simply the right time for me and for WOSU to make this transition. Thanks to many of you, we completed our ambitious capital campaign to support a new headquarters (opening to the public in October!). We also broke records in audience growth and in overall membership support. I am proud of how our team worked creatively during the pandemic to serve you with timely news and unique virtual and broadcast offerings. I'm just as proud of the work environment we've built. Our anonymous staff survey this year gave high marks to the organization as a great place to work.

This month, we're settling into a brand-new custom-built and very visible headquarters at 14th and Pearl Streets just off campus. At the same time, the pandemic is easing its hold on us. In so many ways, it’s a time of rebirth and renewal. Of new hope and optimism. A perfect time for a new leader to advance WOSU with an excellent team to support those efforts. After interviewing our eight senior directors, all highly respected in their fields, one of our national search consultants told me, “They will miss you, Tom, but they won’t miss a beat.” I couldn’t agree more.

I have a few months remaining to help WOSU, but I look forward to spending more time with my wife, daughters, and extended family who live across the country and by the ocean. Columbus will remain our home base, where we'll continue to try to make a positive difference in this wonderful community.

It’s been a great privilege and pleasure, on behalf of all of you, to “work hard at work worth doing.”

Thank you!

Tom Rieland, General Manager

Coming Out of COVID, 89.7 NPR News Is Stronger Than Ever

The past 18 months have tested the WOSU newsroom as much as it has been tested in decades. Reporters, hosts, editors, and technicians have worked hard to keep our listeners and digital users updated on the torrent of news. From the early uncertain days of COVID, to the racial justice protests, to the 2020 election and January 6th insurrection, 89.7 NPR News has been there for it all.

That hard work has paid off. For the second year in a row, The Ohio Associated Press named WOSU “Best Radio News Operation”. We captured first-place awards for best reporter, breaking news, continuing coverage and investigative reporting. It’s not only award judges who recognize WOSU’s excellent work – our audience does as well. Listening to 89.7 has reached historic heights. We are consistently among the top three stations in Columbus. WOSU is number one during the morning commute and the number one ranked news/talk station in the market. Some 200,000 people tune in each week.

This success is due to you, our members. We work every day to bring you balanced, unbiased news as it happens. Your loyal listening and financial support make it all possible.

89.7 NPR News Welcomes Reporter Michael Lee

WOSU has tapped ‘home grown’ talent to bolster its news team. Michael Lee joined the 89.7 newsroom this summer as a reporter. While a journalism student at Ohio State, Michael interned for the WOSU newsroom and All Sides with Ann Fisher. Michael returns to WOSU after earning his master’s degree at Northwestern’s Medill School of Journalism and working at the Chicago Sun-Times.

“I’m excited to return to the team where I got my passion for local news,” Lee said. “It’s good to come home and report on the community I grew up in. I hope to do the community justice in telling their stories.”

Our New Headquarters Is a Reality

See the new performance studio in action during a grand opening tour October 2!

As we complete our transition to the new WOSU headquarters, we're so excited for all the new possibilities this space offers. The Classical 101 staff are particularly stoked about the new performance studio. It’s both visually and acoustically gorgeous. We can’t wait to get some musicians in there and test it out! You’ll really hear (and see) the difference.

Thanks for your part in making our new headquarters a reality.

The American Sound

September brings a rich lineup of works by women composers on The American Sound. Enjoy a piece that lay forgotten for more than 50 years until its discovery in an apartment outside Chicago – the remarkable Second Violin Concerto by Florence Price. You can hear this miraculous discovery on Classical 101 September 18 and 21 on The American Sound. Join host Jennifer Hambrick for The American Sound Saturdays at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm on Classical 101.

Symphony Showcase

The musical moods in Dvorak’s last three symphonies range from dramatic to cheerful and lyric. This month, enjoy Dvorak’s Seventh, Eighth and Ninth Symphonies along with several of Dvorak’s other great works on Classical 101’s Symphony Showcase, wrapping up the last week of September with the beloved Ninth Symphony “From the New World.” Join host Kent Teeters Sundays at 6pm and Thursdays at 7pm.

Essential Classics

This month, Essential Classics features lush ballet music by Khachaturian, piano favorites by Chopin and Schubert, and Renee Fleming and Susan Graham, two of the finest voices of our time singing the irresistible Flower Duet from Lakme.

Join Christopher Purdy every Saturday at 5pm and Monday at 7pm on Classical 101.
