A Letter from the General Manager

Experts say that the first 90 days of a new job are crucial as managers study their new organizations, meet the staff, and begin the process of developing ideas for moving forward. In my case, those experts are correct. In my first three months as general manager, I have become a bigger fan of WOSU, a public media organization that had already earned my respect and the respect of the industry.

WOSU is an amazing place with a staff that is committed to making Columbus and Central Ohio better. I hear it in conversations all over the building. I see the professionalism of a staff that wants nothing less than to get it right. A few weeks after I arrived, I decided that an effective way to meet the WOSU team was to have one-on-one conversations with each staff member. I’ve been impressed with a staff passionate about where they work and proud of what they produce.

I consider it admirable that the WOSU team focuses on work that is impactful. Recently, our education and marketing teams hosted more than 700 parents and kids at Daniel Tiger’s Be My Neighbor Day. Our classical music staff aren’t just hosts inside the building. They are frequently asked to lend their expertise at community events. Our news department works diligently to keep you informed on complicated issues that affect your lives. Our television department is all over the city, producing shows such as Broad & High and QED with Dr. B, among others.

Of course, none of this would be possible without your support. Our development department has developed partner relations with individuals and corporations that help fund our work. We take pride that we’re now operating from a new building at 1800 N. Pearl St. It has been a difficult project to relocate from our former long-time home, the Fawcett Center, but our dedicated staff made it happen.

You are a part of our team. Through your generosity, which includes your valuable time, we are a top public media organization. I look forward to a bright future together. And thanks for a great Columbus welcome in these first few months.

The Ohio Newsroom’s First Reporting Project: Ohio’s Disconnected Democracy

This spring, the brand-new collaboration of Ohio public radio stations, The Ohio Newsroom, is producing a series of reports looking at Ohio’s political divide.

Ohio’s Disconnected Democracy will examine the state’s political system and its service to its citizens, from their perspectives. Reporters from WOSU will join their colleagues in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Yellow Springs to profile a diverse set of people from across the state, paying special attention to those who feel left out and left behind. They will expose the roots of our discord and offer possible solutions as the 2022 midterm campaign intensifies.

Listen for Ohio’s Disconnected Democracy on 89.7 NPR News and read the stories at wosu.org.

The Ohio Newsroom is a formal collaboration among Ohio’s network of public radio newsrooms that reports stories that otherwise may never have been covered.

Meet Tyler Thompson

WOSU reporters have traveled many roads to get to our Columbus newsroom. But for 89.7’s newest reporter, there was no road – not even a path! – he had to cross the Gulf of Alaska by air. Tyler Thompson comes to WOSU from Dillingham, Alaska which is not on an intercity road system.

Tyler worked as KDLG Public Radio’s Morning Edition host and reporter. Thompson is originally from northeast Ohio and earned a journalism degree at Kent State University.

“I’m thrilled to join a newsroom with long-established roots in Columbus. I was born in Ohio, so the opportunity to tell my neighbors stories and to inform the many communities we serve is one I relish,” said Thompson.

A Bonus Month of the Met

In years past, the Metropolitan Opera radio broadcasts would be wrapping up in early May. This year, we get a bonus month! Saturday Matinee broadcasts in May will feature Puccini’s Turandot, Wagner’s Die Meistersinger, Donizetti’s Lucia di Lammermoor and Philip Glass’s Akhnaten, with Anthony Roth Costanzo in the title role. Also appearing is Will Liverman, who created a sensation with his performances this season in the premier of Fire Shut Up in My Bones. What a month!

A Premium Tee

May also means a short spring membership drive on Classical 101. Now that the pandemic has eased, we’re eager to have some guests in our new studios on Pearl Street. And we’re thrilled to share the new design for our Classical 101 t-shirt, available during this drive. Three favorite composers’ names are spelled out with some stylized letters – yup, they look like powdered wigs! We think it manages to look both fun and classy. Be sure to tune in or log on May 18-20 to contribute and get your very own.

Programming Highlights

May sets us up with some music full of wonder and renewal on The American Sound. Take in the otherworldly sounds of chorus and guitars in Reena Esmail’s evocative When the Guitar. Indulge in the hauntingly beautiful colors of Dale Warland’s Arise, My Love for flute, harp and viola. And bask in the wistful beauty of Copland’s music for The Red Pony. Join host Jennifer Hambrick for The American Sound, Saturdays at 6pm and Tuesdays at 7pm.

With musical masterpieces from Germany, England, France, and Italy we’re covering nearly all the baroque bases this month on Symphony Showcase. Handel’s Water Music, orchestral suites by Bach, Rameau and Telemann, and a blazing version of Vivaldi’s Four Seasons. Join Kent Teeters for Symphony Showcase, Sundays at 6pm and Thursdays at 7pm.

Every Sunday this month you’ll be treated to a recent concert from the Columbus Symphony Orchestra. Among the May highlights, pianist William Eddins plays Gershwin’s Rhapsody in Blue and conducts Beethoven’s Fifth, and you’ll hear a Fanfare on Amazing Grace by Adolphus Hailstork as well as the Dvorak Cello Concerto. Lots to look forward to. Join host Christopher Purdy for concerts from your Columbus Symphony Orchestra Sundays at 1pm.
